After dinner Bill Schwab will present “30 Years Photographing the Landscape”.

For 30 years, Bill Schwab has been focused on the landscape, both urban and natural, while making photography his life's work. Throughout his presentation he will share his experience and knowledge of photography as profession as well as a method of self-expression through both commercial and fine art work. Accompanied by many images made throughout his career, he will talk on a range of issues from pursuit and recognition of personal style through marketing of one's work. His evocative imagery is created in a variety of photographic media ranging from 19th century collodion through modern, hybrid processes. Competition Rules for 2010– 2011

In March the annual competitions for best projected image and best print are held in place of the usual showing of slides and prints. For each format (projected or print) members may enter a maximum of two images in the "Assignment" category and two in the "Open" category, for a total of four. If desired, an image originally shown as "Assignment" may be entered as "Open"; however an "Open" image may not be entered as "Assignment". Only images or prints shown at a regular meeting, starting with the previous April, are eligible provided that they are in the same format (projected or print) as originally shown.

Traditional slides will be entered in the competition with other projected images. They must be converted into digital files for the competition.

All voting will be secret. For each category (Assignment and Open) and skill level (Beginner, Advanced, and Gallery/Pro) the judging will be as follows: Members will have a chance to view all entries several times. A preliminary vote will be taken, and the top 6 entries and ties are the finalists. If the number is greater than 10, a second eliminating ballot will be cast. The final vote is taken with each member voting for three entries, indicating his or her choice for first, second, and third. Five (5) points are awarded for the first, three (3) for the second and one (1) for the third. The total points received rank the entries as 1st, 2nd, 3rd and honorable mention. The winners will be announced at the annual banquet.

Passion for Photography by Dietmar Haenchen

Elvis Fest, © DIETMAR HAENCHEN

I take photographs at all kinds of events and I found the Elvis impersonator at the Ypsilanti Elvis festival in 2009. This was a fun event and also offered nice photography opportunities.

On the Cover: I did the tulip petal with the water droplets for an assignment during my Digital Photography II class at the Washtenaw Community College (WCC).

I got interested in photography as a child when a sculptor, Walter Klenk, showed his wonderful slides in one evening's presentation. Mr. Klenk later showed me his darkroom and explained other aspects of photography. It was an exciting time for me, especially since there was not much we could afford after World War II in Germany. My mother eventually gave me her medium format folding camera and I became the family photographer. This was a good start.

Once I could afford better cameras, I soon switched to 35mm single lens reflex (SLR) cameras. These offered great opportunities for macro and nature photography, but I also liked these cameras for travel photography. I especially liked to do slides, but I also did my own black and white film development and printing. The passion for photography continued after I came to the US in 1974.

As many of us, I nowadays use digital SLR's for most of my photography, but I also still use film occasionally because I collect cameras and like to play with the older ones. For this article I selected some of my more recent pictures.

Finally I am also the family's official pet photographer. Lucy, on page 12, is a great subject.

I had a great hike to this beautiful part of our country, the Paria Canyon-Vermillion Cliffs Wilderness Area in Northern Arizona, together with Sandy Labana. We found a lot of great motifs.

The Great White Heron was taken on Marco Island in Florida. I felt lucky to get very close to this bird one morning right after sunrise. The images of the Western Brown Pelicans were taken this January near San Diego in California. I love the colorful breeding plumage of the male (on page 7). The Wood Duck was taken in the Santee Lakes Recreation Preserve near San Diego. This is a nice area for water birds and I recommend that birders and bird photographers go there.

Travel photography is one of those things I like best. The Fire Eater was actually performing at one of my friend's birthday party in Germany last year.

We found the Snake Charmer during the WCC student trip with Terry Abrams to Morocco.

In last year's trip to New York City I found some great scenes.
The Guard was on the "Top of The Rock" in the Rockefeller Center.
I got a real kick out of the Pig Delivery in Chinatown in lower Manhattan.

On pages 10 and 11: The Brooklyn Bridge was taken before sunrise and the Empire State Building after sunset.

I found the Marcy Avenue Station when I accidentally took a train in the wrong direction. Sometimes it pays off to get lost.
